will take care of them THE large stone store which is being erected for Messrs. Wilder & Co. on the Esplanade opposite the Likelike's berth is approaching completion. The stone work of the walls is nearly finished. most of the rafters for the roof are already in position, and the doors are hung. The place should be ready for occupation early in next month. It is to have a rat-proof cement floor laid with a slight slope, so that when occasion offers it can be readily washed. The building is to be divided into five distinct strores by batten partitions Of these, two will be required for the business of Mr. Wilder's steamers. The others will be open for letting, and will, no doubt, be sought after, both on account of the handiness of position, and the character of the building. The design of the roof is one well suited to this climate. There will be an inner roof or ceiling of boards between which and the iron of the roof there will be a considerable space, open at the eaves to the air, which will circulate freely beneath the iron, and keep the

THE case of Makakane vs. W. E. H. Deverell, guardian of Mary Hoeha, occupied the court dur-ing the greater part of Tuesday. The first wit-ness for the plaintiff was a very aged specimen of the Hawaiian race, exceedingly deaf, and so blind that she could only distinguish the genial inter-preter as a mass of black, and couldn't tell by his face whether he were a native or European. Deeds submitted to her were of course unrecognizable. The evidence was of a rather contradictory and tedious nature, so much so that the plaintiff's lawyer got several hints from the bench to cut it short. Although the court was very cool and airy the ladies suffered considerably from the heat, one in particular having a glorious perspiration bath, rubbing it in by means of her handkerchief, with evident relish. During the afternoon there was a learned wrangle between counsel, who, as there was no jury to bamboozle, had not full opportunity for display of talent.

Ir seems from the report of the Claus Spreckels and the Hope that they were both caught in the same cyclone. On September 10 the Claus Spreckels was overtaken by the stormwind strong from N., in latitude 16:20 N., Longitude 114:50 W. The storm passed over her, ending with the wind from the S. The Niagara must have encountered another storm of a like nature.

THE billiard match on Wednesday attracted a great frowd to the Commercial Parlors. Both competitors played well occasionally, but the on-lookers made too much noise for anything like a fine display of skill to be possible. The players pulled up and passed one another alternately several times, and the yells which grated these feats, or a good break, or some really good stroke, were sufficient to make a Roberts or a Cook make a foul stroke, or miss one. Shortly after nine round the town was that that building itself was | Makaiwi finished a good break, and the score stood on fire, a story which created a good deal of alarm as to the safety of the inmates.

vigilant police. New Regulations as to the importation and storage of gunpowder have been issued by the Minister of the Interior, and are gazetted in full in to-day's paper. They differ from those which they replace in an important particular. They allow quantities, up to 50 lbs., of powder to be kept in any substantially constructed brick or stone building but preserve the old restriction to 10 lbs in regard to all wooden buildings. The exact words of the Regulation describing the buildings in which 50 Ibs of powder may be kept are: "any brick or stone fire-proof building." It is to be doubted whether any such thing as a "fire-proof" building is to be found in this Kingdom. The phrase is, however, in common use here to designate a building with non-combustible walls whose roof is covered with iron or slates, and whose windows are provided with iron shutters. No doubt such a liberal inter-pretation of the word will be admitted by the Minister in connection with these regulations.

THE following is Captain Robertson's statement in regard to the recent fatal accident on board the stmr. W. H. Reed :- " On the trip of the stmr. W. H. Reed from Hilo to Kan, September 22, 1882, when off the Pana Coast, obout I o'clock noon, the weather being squally, the fore-boom jibbed to starboard, and knocked the cook, Lee Yin Wong (who was sitting on the top of the galley), overboard; also a native sailor, named Kahelea, was hit and badly stunned, but not knocked overboard. The engines were reversed, and the steamer headed to windward as soon as possible, but the Chinaman did not rise to the surface; he must have been stunned by the blow. We saw his hat floating in the water, but though we made all exertions to find him, could see nothing of him. The boom is 20 feet long, and the steamer was running before the wind at the time; the preventer guy parted when the squall struck her. The man had been warned not to sit on the galley, as it was in a dangerous place at such a time. (Signed) J. R. Robertson, Master of W. H. Reed."

EARLY yesterday morning a ship was signalled off this port with topmasts gone. Pilot McIntyre went out to her, and shortly after the tug Pele took her in tow, and brought her in. She proved to be the American ship Hope, Curtis master, from Port Blakely, bound for Valparaiso, put in here for a refit. Captain Curtis reports that he left Port Townsend August 24, with a full cargo of lumber. Had good weather until September 12, when, in latitude 18:20 N., longitude 122:22 W., he encounttered a cyclone, the wind blowing a hurricane from the N. Hove to five hours, the wind hauling to N.W. Then calm for a short time, and got the gale again from the W. and S.W. for four hours. The baremeter fell to 28:65 inches during the storm. In the first part of the gale, lost the foremost, mainmast, mizzen topmast and bowsprit, with all the sails and rigging. Carried away the steering gear, and lost deck load overboard. Shipped a great deal of water, but the hull remained tight. Assoon as the ship got clear of the evelone, commenced to repair damages. Get up jury fore and main mast and bowsprit, and rigged yards. Rove a new steering gear, and bore up for the Islands, being then in latitute 18:22 N., longitude 124:3 W. On the 13th spoke British bark Banksfield, from Newcastle, England, 124 days out, for San Francisco. The Banksfield remained by the ship for 24 hours, and sent spare spar on board. Had pleasant weather to the Islands.

As old, grey-headed Hawaiian walked into a liquor saloon last Saturday, and turning to a group of his countrymen said: "I have prayed for thirty years that all liquor might be tabu to native and foreigner alike; or that all might be made equal in law, and the one-sided law be removed. Now that it is done, our King is going to try us; and I know you will try to please him. From the time that he signed the law that gives us liquor to this time. I have saved three dollars and a half; and now, I want you to all come up with me and drink." The listening group did so, some taking spirits and some soda water, ginger ale, etc. Then the old man resumed: "This is my first drink since the tabu has been removed, and it is my last! I have used the right my King has given me, and I am pau. Remember, he added impressively-remember, and do not disgrace yourselves. Drink when you want it, but do not get drunk," turned to leave, the barkeeper called to him Here, old man-you speak well. It is good advice you give to them. Here, I will give you a bottle of whisky." The old man took the bottle and CAUTION .-- AMERICAN WALTHAM WATCHES, slowly slid it into his coat pocket. "Now," he said: "this is mine." Then, drawing it out a and placing it on the bar he said to the barkeoper; "I give it back to you so that when some one comes in who has no money you can give them a drink. Do not give it to a woman, a child, or a drunkard! and he then left the room fully satisfied with the exercise of his new born rights.
